Academic Reviews of Rock Writings: A Topical Presentation of Critical Commentaries B. Lee Cooper, Frank W. Hoffmann

This compilation of essays demonstrates the role of academic reviews in confronting and assessing the myriad of rock writings released since 1980. Each review constitutes a snapshot of a single reader's reaction to a specific author's viewpoint about a particular subject in the growing field of rock scholarship. Rather than defining this anthology from an author-oriented perspective, though, the compilers have organized this volume in topical terms. That is, the reviews presented are arranged according to specific artists (Jerry Lee Lewis, Little Richard, and The Rolling Stones), particular pop music charts (BILLBOARD and CASH BOX), fan groups (Baby Boomers and fanzine readers), musical genres (country, folk rock, and rock 'n' roll), special topics (answer songs, Christmas records, and Texas music), and specialized scholarship (rock band name origins and the blues roots of rock music).
