To celebrate its 5th edition, the International Symposium on Biomedical Simulation (ISBMS) was organized in conjunction with the International Meeting on Simulation in Healthcare (IMSH). IMSH is the premier simulation in health care meeting and largest single gathering of clinicians, educators, administrators and other simulation stakeholders. This unique link-up aimed at bringing together simulation users with those involved in its scientific and technological developments in order to foster closer interaction. The joint meeting was held in Phoenix, Arizona during January 23-24, 2010. Biomedical modeling and simulation are at the center stage of worldwide efforts to understand and replicate the behavior and function of the human organism. The Physiome Project and Virtual Physiological Human (VPH) initiative aim to develop advanced computational models that will facilitate the understanding of the integrative function of cells, organs, and organisms, with the ultimate goal of delivering truly personalized medicine. At the same time, progress in real-time biomedical modeling and simulation has enabled more complex, interactive simulations, offering the possibility of highly sophisticated task trainers, procedural and patient simulators to support medical training and safer clinical practice. It is in this context that ISBMS seeks to act as an international forum for researchers in this increasingly important area to share their latest work, discuss future trends and forge new collaborations.
