"I wish I could even want to do something nobler with my money! I admire people who generously give to their community and church, but I feel too pressed by my own expenses." Have you ever experienced this kind of financial conflict? Does your vision of what would be ideal seem out of reach? How do you choose between helping others through giving and helping yourself through saving? You are not alone. Most people don't have an answer. In Practical Generosity: How to Choose between Spending, Saving, and Giving, financial advisor Shane Enete reveals why God wants you to become better at giving, and how encountering Jesus can help you gain financial wholeness. Using contemporary examples, anecdotes, financial knowledge, and biblical truths, Practical Generosity will:

- Equip you to joyfully manage your finances
- Free you from financial bondage
- Deal with the difficult financial realities of family needs, retirement, and debt
